

Justice

By Abdiel Soto

To me, justice is like a goal you have to accomplish its like justice because you have to keep on trying you also have to help people when they need you. Justice is treating everyone the same and never giving up. Justice for me means to help others when they need and to keep trying also to never give up. 90

Justice is never giving up and always trying. Sometimes you have to try new things that is what justice means to me. If you failed and tried that does not make you a person that gives up, it makes you brave and strong. For me, justice is almost like a sign of courage. 8

When I won my first race, I felt like I could do anything. A race is similar to the justice system because you have to focus on one thing in a race, you have to focus on the finish line. Justice focuses on the bottom line: treating everyone fairly. 142

When I am taking a test, I keep trying until my answer is reasonable. On a test you have to think about what your goal is, just like justice. You have to think about what you need to do. 180

When I do something challenging, I keep trying. I don't give up. Justice is treating everyone fairly and equally. When you have the courage to do something you aren't good at and when you succeed in something you have always wanted to accomplish, you are successful. Doing it fairly and equally is putting forth the effort needed to be successful. #keeptrying.

Justice is almost like a goal, it is making your dreams come to life. Justice is something you have to do, justice does not just come to you; it has to be earned and accomplished. By that I mean, to treat people fairly and equally you have to make a decision to do that. Justice can also mean to improve in something you are doing. If you cheat that does not mean justice. If you tried and failed it, it is okay, because it means you did not give up.

To practice and work hard every day is important and it is part of our justice system. You can always ask another person to help you to accomplish your goals, that is fine, but they can't accomplish it for you. You have to do the work, even if it is hard and seem impossible.

If you are positive, you can go far in life. Justice means to be brave in any condition. For every decision we make, we have consequences. If we make good choices, we have good consequences but if we choose bad choices we will have bad consequences. Everything we do is a choice. I always try to make good choices so that I can have positive consequences. Everyone fails at something-- it's going to happen-- however, if you tried your best and you did not succeed, it's okay because you tried your best. Justice is persevering when things get hard.

This explains that I think that justice is to help other people when they need you. Justice also means to try your best. This means people try and they still failed what matters is that you tried your best that is what justice means to me. All people make mistakes we have to respect them and correct them. Justice means to treat people equally and fairly.

Justice also means to try new things that you have always wanted to do. Justice is to not give up even if something is challenging. Justice is to put forth effort and to try your best.
